

BORROWED TIME

Encore II
Time won't wait

I woke to find the years had flown,
Like whispered names the wind had known.
The stars I chased now fade from sight their echoes gone before the night

Time won't wait, so shine before it's gone.
One last spark before we're done.

So run with me through fleeting skies
before the dawn forgets our cries.
We're just a breath, a silent shore
a borrowed light and nothing more.

So hold me while the moment burns
before the wheel of time just turns.
We're shadows dancing through the gray,
a borrowed light that slips away.

I tried to grasp the golden haze,
but time won't wait, it never stays.
Each step I take, the road rewinds and leaves the past in silent lines.

Time won't wait, so shine before it's gone.
One last spark before we're done.

So run with me through fleeting skies
before the dawn forgets our cries.
We're just a breath, a silent shore
a borrowed light and nothing more.

So hold me while the moment burns,
before the wheel of time just turns.
We're shadows dancing through the gray,
a borrowed light that slips away.

Time won't wait, so shine before it's gone.
One last spark before we're done.
Don't fade now, become the sun,
and then it's gone.
