

BORROWED TIME

Movement XIII

True friends

You don't need a crowd, just a few,
those who see the real you.
They don't judge or try to change,
they stand with you, through joy and pain.

It's not about what you give or take,
it's the moments shared, the bonds you make.
In silence, in laughter, in tears,
they're the ones who wipe away fears.

True friends don't need to be asked,
they stand by you, no questions, no mask.
They love you just as you are,
ready to catch you, no matter how far.

Through every storm, through every fight,
a real friend's there, holding you tight.
No need for words, their heart is clear,
they're the ones who'll always be near.

True friends don't need to be asked,
they stand by you, no questions, no mask.
They love you just as you are,
ready to catch you, no matter how far.

Not the number, but the depth they bring,
in your life, they're everything.
A friend's a treasure, pure and true,
they're the family you choose, too.

Through thick and thin, they'll stand by you,
a friendship that's steadfast, strong, and true.
What you need, they'll always give,
together you grow, together you live.

True friends don't need to be asked,
they stand by you, no questions, no mask.
They love you just as you are,
ready to catch you, no matter how far.

No matter how far.
